Commenting on the double award, Head, Marketing and Customer Service, FlexipGroup, Joy Ehibor said: "I feel very excited that we won this Year's IT Solutions and Consulting Company of the Year' and the 'Cybersecurity Product Company of the Year' awards. FPG Technologies has been receiving BoICT awards back-to-back for the past five years. These awards have showed how innovative we are as a company, our rich solutions portfolio, and of course the value we add to organisations. Our solutions cut across Cybersecurity, Digital Transformation, Cloud, Mobility, Infrastructure, Business Insights and Productivity and IT Consulting Services.

Further speaking on the company's unique proposition, Ehibor said: "We ensure choice for our customers always, our solutions are innovative, customized/strategic for any organization who is looking to go to the market in a different approach, and of course we have experts who are available to respond to any support issues 24/7."

In his speech, the Founder and Editor in Chief of Communications Week Media Limited, initiators of the Award, Mr. Ken Nwogbo, had charged recipients to double on their efforts in service of the ICT market, noting that the Award is just a way of acknowledging the innovative work the companies are doing and a call to do more.

Also speaking, Editor of Communications Week, Mr. Chike Onwuegbuchi, harped on the transparency of the Awards and pointed to the fact that the choice of recipients is based on a voting process that strictly relies of the acceptability of stakeholders in the industry.

The MD/CEO, Rex Mafiana asserted 'This a great win for us, once again. We are Innovative and versatile In Our Approach, and we are focused on providing organizations with innovative technology solutions that help them drive extreme business agility with confidence'. We always put our customers first, since for us, it is always Happy Customer, Happy FPG!
